They often help implement individualized education programs (IEPs) for students with special needs.

Classroom Management

Teacher assistants often assist with maintaining a positive and orderly classroom environment. This involves monitoring student behavior, facilitating transitions between activities, and supporting social-emotional development. Their presence helps teachers focus on instruction while ensuring students remain engaged and safe.

Administrative Duties

Beyond direct student interaction, teacher assistants frequently handle clerical tasks such as preparing materials, organizing supplies, and recording attendance. These behind-the-scenes contributions are essential for smooth classroom operations.
